Mindset and Skills

Effective leadership requires a unique set of skills. Learn how developing the right mindset and skills can set you apart from the rest. Leadership can be learned and honed, so start your development today.

Commitment

To be a great leader, you must be fully committed to your profession. Recognize the importance of what you do and take ownership of your duties.

Humility

A good leader is self-aware and open to feedback. Recognize that you don't know everything and be willing to learn from others.

Empathy

Leadership goes beyond the badge. Be part of the community and put people first, especially when they are most vulnerable.

Communication

A strong communicator can convey their message effectively. Listen actively and communicate clearly for maximum impact.

Leadership Styles

Leadership styles can vary based on individual personality, situational factors, and personal beliefs. Learn about the most common leadership styles and how they can influence your approach to leadership.

Directive Leadership

This style is characterized by a top-down approach, where officers are expected to follow strict rules and guidelines. This style works well in high-risk situations.

Delegative Leadership

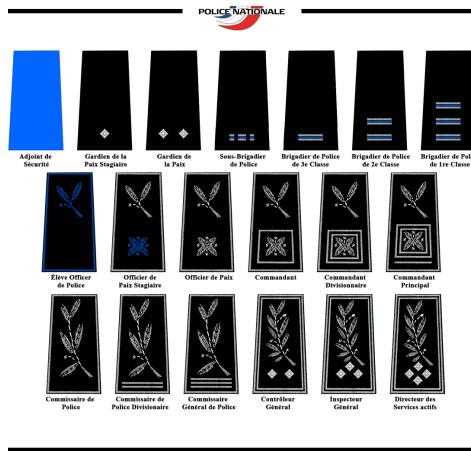

This style allows officers to take on more responsibility and have more control over their work. This style works well in supporting community programs and initiatives.

Participative Leadership

This style encourages officers to share their thoughts and ideas, resulting in increased morale, innovation, and collaboration in decision-making.

Rank Promotions

Rank promotions are a common goal for LAPD officers looking to advance their careers. Understand the necessary steps to achieve your desired rank and become the leader you aspire to be.

Understand the Requirements

Know what is required for each rank promotion and make a plan for how you will achieve it.

Take Responsibility

Take ownership of your role and responsibilities within the department, and demonstrate your readiness for promotion.

Interview Tips

The interview is your moment to shine. Be ready for any question that comes your way and confidently showcase your skills and personality to the promotion board.

Watch Your Body Language

The way you carry yourself during the interview can greatly impact the impression you make. Stay relaxed and confident.

Know Your Resume

Interviewers will ask about the achievements listed on your resume. Be prepared to talk about them in detail.

Practice Makes Perfect

Practice answering common interview questions beforehand to boost your confidence and make sure you get your points across effectively.
